Be monumental.

Seventy-five years ago, Bridge Engineer Joseph Strauss led a team of innovative pioneers in the construction of one of the greatest monuments of all time. The Bridge stands today as a symbol of ingenuity, imagination, and perseverance.

Now it's your turn. Take your place in the Joseph Strauss Legacy Circle and support the Bridge's legacy for generations to come.

You or your company will be recognized on the Strauss statue at the Bridge, and you will join other business and civic leaders at a once-in-a-generation party at Crissy Field on May 27.

MISSION

The Institute at the Golden Gate advances environmental preservation and global sustainability by facilitating cross-sector dialogue and collaboration, encouraging new partnerships, and promoting actions. As a program of the Golden Gate National Parks Conservancy in partnership with the National Park Service, the Institute translates a legacy of innovative community engagement from the protection of the parks to solutions for our planet.

ESTABLISHED: 2008

FORT BAKER

Located in the Marin Headlands on the north side of the Golden Gate Bridge, Fort Baker has stood sentinel at the entrance to San Francisco Bay for more than a century. Now a spectacular national park located in a UNESCO international biosphere reserve, Fort Baker is home to the Institute at the Golden Gate and the first LEED Gold certified national park lodge in the country to achieve LEED Gold certification. Environmental groups may apply to the Institute at the Golden Gate for reduced meeting and room rates.

THE INSTITUTE AT THE GOLDEN GATE

The environmental challenges are real.

The time to act is now.

The Institute at the Golden Gate is a catalyst.

Since its establishment in 2008, the Institute at the Golden Gate has become a driving force for cross-sector collaboration and solutions that are helping to shape a better world.

Tapping into the talent and creativity of the Bay Area and Silicon Valley, the Institute at the Golden Gate unites business leaders, scientists, journalists, youth leaders, policymakers, academics, and other dedicated citizens to promote global sustainability and responsibility.

Through its Turning the Tide conferences, public lectures, co-hosted meetings, and programs such as Park Prescriptions, the Institute at the Golden Gate fosters relationships with organizations and individuals committed to positive change.

Lectures & Public Programs

As part of its mission to bring the latest in global environmental thinking and action to the Bay Area, the Institute presents public programs and lectures in partnership with the Commonwealth Club and Conservation International. For lecture schedules and details on both series, please visit www.instituteatgoldengate.org.

Park Prescriptions: Good Health from the Great Outdoors

Park Prescriptions, a growing national movement designed to strengthen the links between the U.S. healthcare system and parks and public lands, is a direct result of connections cultivated by the Institute at the Golden Gate and its Turning the Tide event. Since 2009, a cross-sector group of physicians, healthcare advocates, park leaders, policymakers, and environmental experts have collaborated with the Institute to advance this important initiative, which was highlighted in a recent national-level listening session on health and the outdoors. The Institute at the Golden Gate has published a summary of existing campaigns and programs in Park Prescriptions: Profiles and Resources for Good Health from the Great Outdoors, available at www.instituteatgoldengate.org/parkprescriptions.
